Character Background

- He was born in China.
- He was the Monkey King in disguise.
- He demonstrates many stereotypes related to Chinese culture, showing is ethnicity.
Internals

Mental:
- He demonstrates a high level of knowledge in school.
- He has very little self-control.

Spiritual:
- He feels very attached to the United States.

Emotional:
- He is exuberant.
- He shows a love for attention.
Externals

Dress:
- He wears a purple and yellow ceremonial robe.
- He has long hair braided in one strand.

Movement:
- He always seems to have a very big smile on his face.
- He takes big steps and uses exaggerated arm movements.
Externals, cont.

Posture:
- He is overall upright in posture, but his neck does seem to be bent forward a bit.

Mannerisms:
- He often uses Ls instead of Rs and vice-versa.
- He is very loud and seems to be unaware of that.
- He blurts out the answer to a question he knows.
Personally, I would not want to be around Chin-Kee for very long. He is loud, exaggerated, and has very little self-control. Because of these characteristics, many people, including myself, would want to avoid him as much as possible. However, the point of Chin-Kee is to be a stereotype with these qualities, so if you look at it that way, it makes sense why Chin-Kee is the way he is.
Resources

American Born Chinese, Characters Document