Zoologist

Peter
Why you chose the career you did

• I chose this career because I love all animals and I think so many interesting things about them too.
Describe the career (this should be the main part of your project)

• Zoologists are life scientists who study animals in laboratories and their natural habitats. They also study the animals origin and development of species.

• They also study the animal's habits, behavior, and interactions. They also research animal sicknesses.

• They work on protecting animals through conservation work

• They are usually employed by college or universities

• They can also be researchers working with experiments in labs or in the field, outdoors.
Describe the career (this should be the main part of your project)

• The education required for this career is a Bachelor’s Degree (B.A. or B.S.)
• The salary for career $30,000 to $80,000/year
How the career relates to science

• Zoologists are animal scientists that study the animal kingdom, which is part of biology.
What you have learned by researching the career

- Zoologists sometimes have to work in the harshest of climates to gather research.
- Zoologists only study the animal kingdom
- Zoologists study animals in a lab
Sources

